

COULDN'T IMAGINE LIFE WITHOUT IT

CHRIS BERRY TALKS WITH ANDREW HODGE ABOUT HIS KANGA 5 SERIES

When Andrew Hodge started his contracting business 18 months ago little did he realise the impact one machine could make on his business.

'I purchased a KANGA 5 SERIES after five months and the amount of time it has saved me has been immeasurable. It is also extremely mobile and can get me into places where tractors don't just struggle, they simply don't get there.'

As a measure of just how much use Andrew's KANGA 5 SERIES has had he ran up 600 hours of usage last year and has already used it a further 200 this year.

'I really couldn't run my business without it now. I use it with the P10 Pro, post knocker, a trencher, post hole borer and 4 in 1 bucket.'

What's more, the machine paid for itself much more quickly than Andrew had imagined. Having come from a background of being estate manager for a stud in Newmarket he was used to analysing the validity of machinery. This surpassed all his expectations.

'I financed it over 5 years, but it has already paid for itself in just one. That's quite phenomenal. We are carrying out all manner of jobs with it even though our core business is predominantly fencing and hard landscaping.

Andrew believes that either the 7 SERIES or 8 SERIES will be his next KANGA purchase, but with the service and reliability he has received from the company he doesn't see that happening for perhaps another three years.

'The service I have received has been absolutely A1. I have had no problems with the machine at all. It has really helped get my business off the ground and we are currently going from strength to strength. The KANGA 5 SERIES has been a big part of our success.'

Andrew Hodge Contracting looks after several Newmarket racing studs and its variety of fencing work includes post and rail, equine, rabbit, stock and domestic. Andrew transports his KANGA on an Ifor Williams trailer.

Andrew is ably supported in his business by his wife Rachel, who is a professional accountant.
